The photograph reveals that he has confidence and aggression to win. The details on the photograph were pretty good it really brings out the picture. It's real good on how they bring it out and to show all of the actions on this photograph. that's what I think about this picture.	I believe the attitude in this photo is either anger or frustration. Colour (red) make the picture seem more of a mad colour. the lining of Just the boy and every one in the background faded putting more focus on the boy. It looks as if he could be concentrating on his next shot not that he is mad but of focus. You do not see the marbles on the ground so it doesn't look like he is playin. To conclude it I believe his attitude is concentration/focus:	When I see this photo, I see the attitude of perserverance. This kid is so determined to win, its not even funny. Just by looking at his mouth, we no he is consintrated. His mouth is closed meaning he is breathing threw his nose. Most times when we are searious we breath threw are noses. Another great detail are his eyes. We can tell so much about someone threw the eyes. His eyes are very fixated on his object. They show a great deal of determination. Finaly Here his body is positionned. He his right into it. We can tell by the way the photo is taken that the Background is blurry. Its like were in his head and that everything else is blocked out except the game.	I think that this boy is focused, determined, "in the zone," fully prepared to win his match. I can say this because of different details form the photo. For one, the expression on the boy's face. He has a very serious look and it seems like he is really concentrating and trying to focus only on the task at hand. Also the level he is at to the ground. At the level he is at, he can see the field at a better angle so help him make the perfect move. He could have just thrown the marble without getting down and really taking so time to think about the shot and what is the best option to make. Also the way that he's looking towards the field makes me believe that no matter what is going on around him including people moving, sounds, etc won't stop him from winning and showing off his best abilities. Because of the knee pads I can tell that he is very prepared. He knew going in that to win he would need to set up into different positions including on all four so wearing the pads will eliminate the pain and insure no distractions while he is playing. Overall I think based on this photograph that this boy is fully prepared physically and mentally, taking the game very seriously and not just taking this as a game but as an opportunity to win while doing everything in his power to do his best and lay it all on the floor. I believe this boy has a big heart with a lot of pride and couldn't quit at any time for any circumstance.
